RIVER PASSES 13-FOOT MARK AT DAM AFTER NIGHT OF RAIN

Lockmen Believe Danger of Flood Here is Remote.

BOATS TO MOVE

Many Creeks Rise; Dramatic Rescue Near Willoughby.

Fed by an all-night rain, the Ohio river passed the 13-foot mark at dam No. 8 at noon today. Although danger of a flood stage was believed remote by lockmen, the river was rising two-tenths of a foot an hour.

No Boats for Week.

Packets and towboats, which have been tied up for about a week because of low water and ice near Leionville, Pa., will start operating on the lower Ohio tomorrow. No boats have passed through the locks at Dam No. 8 for a week. Pool stage here is 15 feet, about three feet more than the gauge at noon.

Many other Ohio creeks and rivers were at flood stage today and property damage is expected to run into thousands.

Several boats were affected in several instances. The tugboat, the Grant Downing, of near Willoughby, related that their cottage had been surrounded by water since early yesterday when the Chagrin river, choked with ice cakes, overflowed its banks.

Last night efforts to attract neighbors by switching on and off the electric lights in the cottage proved unsuccessful. Early this morning Downing attracted attention by firing a shotgun.

At Fairport Harbor Several Boats

A small skiff, rowed through the swirling waters, reached the stranded family and carried the two small children to safety. The rescuers returned for Mr. and Mrs. Downing a short time later, bringing the nearly exhausted couple to shore.

Two 60-year-old men, perched on the roof of a small house on the outskirts of Cleveland, were rowed to safety through the rampaging waters of Big Creek. Other similar rescues were reported.

At Fairport harbor several boats were loosed from their moorings and much damage resulted when the steamer Minch crashed into the McFarland. An ore boat was also wrecked.

Several Injured in Poorhouse Fight Over Opening Window

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 19.—Kentucky authorities were investigating today a riot at the Lewis county poorhouse at Vanceburg, Ky., near here, yesterday.

When one inmate opened a window of the living room, another objected vigorously. An oral argument soon led to a fist fight. More than a dozen inmates are reported to have taken sides. Chairs, sticks, canes, fists and any objects that would move were thrown about the room.

Officials of the institution, realizing the seriousness of the fight, sent in a riot call to county officials. When police arrived they were forced to use "strong arm" methods to quell the outbreak. Several of the inmates were slightly injured, it is reported. These were given first aid treatment at the poorhouse infirmary.

PITTSBURGH COMPANY GETS E. ROCHESTER DAIRY CONTROL

Reick-McJunkin Buys B. & S. Vinocur Holdings.

TRUCKS OPERATE

Deal Includes Acre of Ground and Milk Plant.

The Reick-McJunkin Dairy company of Pittsburgh, in a deal closed today, acquired the milk and creamery business of the B. & S. Vinocur company at East Rochester. One acre of ground, a hollow tile block plant and several small buildings are included in the holdings.

The Pittsburgh company is operating a fleet of glass tank milk trucks to Cleveland and Pittsburgh. It is said that dairy producers in the district are delivering between 10,000 and 15,000 pounds of milk daily at the East Rochester plant. This means between 2,000 and 2,255 gallons.

For several years the milk producers of the East Rochester district sold to a condenser plant at Minerva, but because of market advances caused by co-operative selling through the Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales company, of Youngstown, the Minerva interests closed their plant and moved to Tennessee, an unorganized territory.

It is said that the Pittsburgh company also has a working arrangement with the Telling company at Cleveland.

NAB SUSPECT IN STANDARD OIL HOLDUPS

William Mullen, 27, Philadelphia, Held for Court.

DENIES CHARGE

Man Identified by Norman Anthony, His Alleged Victim.

Charged with having twice held up Norman Anthony, attendant at the Standard Oil company's gasoline station, Broadway and East Fifth street, William Mullen, 27, Philadelphia, was today held for a hearing Monday morning before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley.

Mullen was arrested at his room in the Hotel Marlborough, Sixth and Washington streets, by Patrolmen Smith and Haley at 3 o'clock this morning after young Anthony alleged he was the gunman who robbed him of $97 on December 8, 1928 and of $57 on January 2, 1929. Mullen, who said that he came to East Liverpool about 10 days ago, denies the charge.

Description Tallies, Police Say. The description which Anthony gave of the man who held him up tallied with that of Mullen, police said. Smith and Haley went to the hotel where they questioned Mullen. Later they called young Anthony, who lives in Ninth street, to the hotel. Taken before Mullen he said the suspect was the hold-up man.

Mullen, police said, is engaged in the peddling business. Police today were checking up his activities. Officials of the Standard Oil company were also conducting an investigation.

Two Holdups at Night.

Anthony was preparing to close the filling station on the night of December 8 when a bandit entered and at the point of a revolver forced him to turn over a canvas bag containing money.

The second robbery occurred while Anthony had his back toward the door. The bandit entered and ordered the young man to open the cash drawer. While he kept the attendant covered with a gun in his right hand, the robber emptied the cash register with the other hand and then fled.

United States May Send Envoy If Papal State is Created

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—After an interlude of 66 years, the United States may again send a minister plenipotentiary to the Vatican at Rome, when the papal state is again created.

Secretary of State Kellogg declared today that the question had not yet come up officially, but it is believed that should the present negotiations between the Vatican and Premier Mussolini for the erection of a sovereign Vatican state within the precincts of the Italian kingdom be successful, the United States would have to accord recognition.

France, together with many other powers, has been represented at the Vatican by an ambassador for several years, and reports from Paris indicate that she is already considering the necessity for ambassadorial representation if the new state is created.

Formal recognition, it would be in accord with diplomatic usage since this government came in to being.

CLOSE REVIVAL AT NAZARENE CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. I. M. Ellis to Preach at Three Services.

248 CONVERTED "Bible Picture Reel" Sermon Subject Tonight.

Utilizing numerous scriptural references in discussing "The Signs of the Times" as indicating the end of the present age, Rev. I. M. Ellis, Texas evangelist, impressed the largest week night audience yet attending the First Nazarene church services in St. Clair avenue last night.

Fifteen persons accepted the altar call, thus sending the total to 248 for the campaign now within two days of its end.

Lights flickered on account of the heavy rain at the moment just as he concluded his sermon. For 20 minutes the auditorium was in darkness which tended to mar slightly an impressive service.

Refers to Present Day Condition.

The Rev. Mr. Ellis spoke last night of the political, financial and religious relations of the earth as having reached proportions indicated in figurative terms by Luke, the prophet Nahum and others as they noted the budding of the fig tree and the affirmations, "Chariots shall be with flaming torches," "the fig trees shall be terribly shaken" and "the chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like lightning."

Present day conditions, he held, warranted the consummation of prophecies that he quoted.

Conviction, deep and penetrating, followed the discourse among the hearers.

The final week-day discussion of the book of Revelations was given in the afternoon. It paved the way for Rev. Mr. Ellis' famed sermon on "The Millennium" which he will preach on Sunday afternoon.

There will be no afternoon service today. Tonight his subject will be, "A Bible Picture Reel."

The Rev. Mr. Anderson, Kentucky evangelist, will accompany the pastor of the New Brighton, Pa., Nazarene church, the Rev. Arthur Gould, here tonight. They, as on last Saturday night, will assist in the service.

In addition to the sermon on "The Millennium" on Sunday afternoon the Junior choir, made up of 65 voices and directed by Miss Bonella Pyle, will sing.

The Panther gymnasium in Pittsburgh last night.

Herman Morris, Aliquippa, was in Midland yesterday on business.

Mrs. M. C. Logan, Beaver avenue, who has been ill for the several days, is improving.

The revival will conclude with three services at the church tomorrow. The morning theme of the Rev. Mr. Ellis will be "God's Care." In the evening he will terminate his engagement with the congregation by discussing "The Sin Against the Holy Ghost."

The invocation last night was made by the Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Barnett Sisters Here.

The Barnett sisters, 8 to 16 years of age, arrived from Akron in time for the service last night and sang three times to the crowded house.

Their numbers were "Doubt Not the Bible," "When the Bells of Glory Ring for Me" and "When the Home Gates Swing Open for Me."

Carl Green again captivated his hearer with a saw solo, "He Is Coming for Me."

The Barnett sisters will be present at tonight's service and the three meetings tomorrow.

"It was a Sunday night crowd during the week," said the Rev. Mr. Ben- edum, the pastor, of last night's attendance. "And more attended in the afternoon than at any former Bible readings."

Though tired, the Rev. Mr. Ellis said he is in fine condition for the four services yet awaiting him ere he brings the revival to a close to-morrow night. "We are having a good time; it is a fine meeting," he said.

Smoothness

Never Before Achieved in a Low-Priced Automobile

Of all the exceptional performance qualities resulting from the advanced design of the new Chevrolet Six, none is more impressive than its remarkably smooth operation.

Although the new six-cylinder motor develops
32% more power with higher speed and faster acceleration, it delivers better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline——its outstanding feature of performance is a degree of smoothness never before achieved in any low-priced automobile.

Whether you are flashing away from a traffic stop with the accelerator to the floor, whether you are rolling along at twenty-five miles an hour or doing well above sixty on the open road—the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.

To achieve such remarkable performance in a car of such low price, Chevrolet spent years in development work. Over 100 different engines were designed, built and subjected to over a million miles of testing at the General Motors Proving Ground before the present motor was adopted.

The new power plant has many unusual features, such as the new acceleration pump, the new gasoline pump and filter, and the new automatic lubrication of the rocker arms.

The four-wheel brakes have been newly designed to assure positive, quiet action. Steering has been made easier. And the new Fisher bodies with their new lines, new colors, adjustable driver's seats and new appointments, represent new heights of style, distinction, comfort and outstanding value.

We extend you a cordial invitation to see and drive the new Chevrolet Six. We want you to know how finely the new Chevrolet Six is built and how smoothly it performs!

Good News For East Liverpool

Decision of the Pennsylvania Railroad company to restore excursion train service to Rock Springs park, in Chester, next summer is not only encouraging to the owners of the West Virginia amusement place, but is also good news for East Liverpool.

Through the efforts of C. C. Macdonald, lessee of the park, once the mecca for thousands of picnickers from all parts of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, the railroad owners have promised to operate as many as three trains daily over the Panhandle and Cleveland and Pittsburgh divisions.

The coming season should witness scenes common in the days of 1911, the peak year at Rock Springs, when thousands of pleasure-seekers were poured into the Chester park which was recognized as one of the beauty spots in the tri-state zone.

The significance of the restoration of excursion service, which is essential to the success of the park, is seen in the fact that approximately $80,000 was spent by picnickers in East Liverpool stores every summer in the bygone days. And this conservative estimate did not include street car fares, money used for amusement purposes or the cost of railroad tickets.

Revocation of the ban on picnic trains, too, will mean an extensive improvement program at Rock Springs, according to the park lessee. And this should help business in the East Liverpool district, for it will mean the outlay of money for materials and will provide jobs for scores.

It is another harbinger of prosperity.

Cooper's Inaugural Address

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper's inaugural address contains much that is worth while. It was the pronouncement of a business man who hopes to conduct a business-like administration—who believes that the business of this great commonwealth lends itself to the same sort of direction as the business of any private enterprise.

In his address to the general assembly, he carried out one of his chief campaign pledges—a request for less legislation and the correction of many of the abuses previous legislatures have saddled upon the people in the name of law.

Danger in legislative experimentation was stressed by Mr. Cooper, and he called upon the assembly to unite behind his administration in giving Ohio an outstanding, business-like regime for the forthcoming two years. One looks forward expectantly to such an administration, inasmuch as Mr. Cooper sheared off all superlatives in his speeches and got down to the job in hand in the fewest possible words.

Politicians in the past have, in dozens of instances, been Ohio's governor. But today the chief executive is a man who has made a singular success of his own business—a man who has built up a state-wide prestige as an economist, as a conservative, as a builder. And with such a background it should naturally follow that the state will within a comparatively short time begin to feel the change that the new administration will try to bring about—a change for the good. It is anticipated—a change for the benefit of the entire commonwealth.

Free rein for private enterprise, no unwarranted supervision of business and industry, the doing away of conflict between utilities and the state, greater regard for the public welfare, a policy of administrative economy all along the line, and obedience to the law, without regard to what law it may be—these were the outstanding declarations of Mr. Cooper in his inaugural address. He asked the people to help—and he is entitled to the support of everyone.

Infants and Church Services

The California state department of health, following research in the bureau of child hygiene, has announced that young children should not be taken to church. Nervous systems of babies, it has learned, are instruments whose keyboards should not be unduly stressed. Undue excitement and sustained periods of variation from the normal quiet of infants ought to be avoided.

The loud noises that are attendant at a church service have been discovered as particularly harmful to the sensation-receiving structure of babies. This likewise has been declared true as regards concerts and theatrical performances, or an event where bright lights and conspicuous sounds are present.

There is little doubt but what this learned opinion will receive the wholehearted approval and active support of mothers to whom the welfare of their infants is a matter of prime importance. When it is a question of producing strong and healthy bodies every method which will aid in accomplishing the desired result should be pressed into service.

And, of course, there is the other side to the matter. Nervous systems of many adults are not fool-proof arrangements that can handle an indiscriminate assortment of sensations. After all there is no particular advantage to be gained by placing a considerable portion of a group in a state of nervous irritability, and this is quite often the result produced upon an assemblage in which is present a child whose sensibilities have been disturbed to the point of producing an active outburst of complaint.

The rights and privileges of adults to enjoy and appreciate a sacred service, or a concert, or a show may be negligible in comparison with the claim that a baby has to the attainment of health, but when both results flow from the same source there is no reason why the practice under discussion should not be established.

Presidents are not superstitious. President Coolidge entertains 13 United States senators at a Friday breakfast, and the so-called hoodoo figure was the late Woodrow Wilson's lucky number.

Street Commissioner McLaughlin and his co-workers realize that clean streets are factors in curbing the spread of disease, judging from their all-night work in the business district.

"City schools close May 29"—headline. Cheering news for 5,800 children.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—To Southerners, especially, the tale of present-day belief in witchcraft comes as no surprise, for southerners were brought up in the knowledge that all about them their negro servants and neighbors believed in witches and that some held secret rites. It is even stated that some of the white hillbillies of the mountain regions set great store by ancient sorceries.

There are many types of witches and many types of strange worship and practices which their devotees would be offended to hear called witchcraft. Every one is based on the hope of mental peace or physical cure of some ailment; the basic idea always embodies the recognition of a higher power. It must be remembered that Jesus Himself was put to death because he practiced miracles and instructed the people in a doctrine inimical to the elder gods. Witches were burned in European countries, notably in Germany, England, and Scotland, and put to death in Massachusetts. The York episode is but an unfortunate incident in the history of witchcraft. It is an old, old story and while the doubters are many believers in Pennsylvania, the believers living in the United States today are to be found in every section.

Perhaps the strangest and certainly the oldest body is the Ancient Order of Rosae Crucis. No one is aware how many members the order has but some index may be obtained from the fact that 200 Americans are sailing this month for Egypt to engage in a ritual said to be about 3300 years old. It will be noted that they belong to an order reputed to have been established centuries before Christ, so they could hardly be deemed Christians.

There is a material divergence in the claims of the branches of the Rosicrucians. The original story known in modern times is that between 1614 and 1616 three books were published at Cassel in Germany which purported to tell the story of a secret society's formation in the fourteenth century. One Christian Rosakreutz was said to have been the founder. The order was so secret, it was stated, that one member was not known to another. In some forms the tale runs that a member of one lodge knew no member of another lodge was a Rosicrucian but all members knew there were many lodges.

Finally some secret societies did arise, calling themselves Rosicrucians. These were almost all organized in Germany and from the towns of Germany may be traced the York witchcraft as that section was to a considerable degree populated by Germans.

It is a very notable fact that the symbolically inscribed tokens and charms which have come to public light as the result of the York trial display queer characters having a quite definite resemblance to Egyptian and Arabic ancient writings and carvings from that part of the world.

The American branch of the Rosicrucians contends that their society and their ritual come down from the Pharaoh Amen-Hotep, who is declared the founder. Amen-Hotep was the son-in-law of Tut-Ankh-Amen, whose sumptuous burial place in the Valley of the Kings in Egypt has been excavated recently.

Probably the most interesting figure who ever practiced Rosicrucianism was Joseph Balsamo whom the caustic Thomas Carlyle characterized as "the quack of quacks, the most perfect scoundrel that in these latter ages has marked the world's history." Balsamo was born in 1731, the son of a shopkeeper in a small way at Palermo. He is known to history as Count Cagliostro.

From England the Count and Countess traveled to Russia where he was received with honors and finally settled in Strasburg in Germany. His fame in healing spread all over Europe. The Prince Cardinal de Rohan, a great French prince of both church and state either because of some illness or because of curiosity, sent word to Strasburg that he would like to see the Count. The Count immediately returned word that if the Prince was ill he should come to him; if not he did not care to see him. This only increased the Prince Cardinal's curiosity and he went to Strasburg and from that time on completely fell under Cagliostro's domination. The Count and Countess returned to Paris with him.

But the Prince Cardinal fell into disfavor at the court and both he and the Count were thrust into the Bastille where they languished for nine months. Then they were released. The Count was expelled from France, and never again did he find the old welcome from the courts of Europe. On visiting Rome he fell into the hands of the Holy Office which made short work of the whole matter, ordered the Egyptian Masonry manuscript burned by the common hangman, cursed any who adhered to the belief, and sent the Count to prison for life where he died in a short time. The Countess, who had been imprisoned in a convent, survived him for some time.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Midtown Manhattan is becoming stuffed, like the Strasburg goose, with skyscrapers. A mere casual inspection of the skyline from the sidewalk develops a nice fat neck-ache. This new area of topless towers is confined largely to what is known as the Grand Central District.

One of those sharks for statistics discovers the tenants alone in the cloud-plundering strip outnumber the combined population of Cheyenne, Brownsville, Reno, Emporia and Albuquerque. In actual figures more than 60,000 people. The Woolworth building down town houses 10,000.

New York's psychology is that of the small town. Just as a new depot will spruce up the north end of Main street, so has the Grand Central station inspired the mighty building rush about it. Shortly the tall building in the world the Reynolds will be finished at Lexington avenue and 42d street.

It will stand 67 stories and 508 feet above the street level. The new Grand Central building spanning Park Avenue is another whooper, and the Chalmers building a stone's throw away rises to 52 stories. Next door to the Hotel Belmont is another 53-story affair nearly completed.

Alarmists are crying the city is being overbuilt and what will we do? Yet a 42-story office building a little off the beaten path in the same neighborhood was recently filled two weeks after it was opened. And at the moment there is an unsatisfied demand for office space.

The big problem is traffic congestion. Only the floating hotel population is able to live in the Grand Central district. The rest of the workers must live from five to thirty miles away, and as all arrive and depart at the same time, the result is a brow-wrinkler.

There are, for instance, three blocks on 42d street where it has been found 10,000 may be accommodated on the sidewalks comfortably. Yet twice daily more than 50,000 people crowd into the same space. There is an actual record of street traffic being held up 45 minutes in this zone. Two business hours and hundreds of thousands are lost daily and nothing can be done.

A popular cocktail diversion of the moment is composed of equal parts tomato juice and gin. The juice of the tomato is reputed to frustrate next morning's parade of "The Brooklyn boys" over the transom. Broadway seizes upon any panacea for the day after throb with a fervor. A few months ago it was kraut juice.

The vampire role has been supplanted by a fetching quality of wit—O, so shy! In one of the cafes the other evening the 1927 model of cobra woman with a record of philandering that made tabloid editors dance in the street appeared without a single touch of make-up. She wore no jewels and was otherwise inconspicuous. Once or twice only did she look up at her escort and then demurely with a sad sweet smile. She was the first lady, incidentally, to parade the avenue with a marmoset on her shoulder several years ago. She also sported the first anklet watch. And now she's gone completely Lillian Gishish.

My notion of the ultimate in pessimism is a fellow who complained this morning he had to rent a larger sized safety deposit box. What a gay companion for a balm hunting trip in Gilead!

In a public dining room the other night there appeared a distinguished dinner party. Such illustrious figures as Charles M. Schwab, Jules Bache, Felix Warburg and a sprinkling of lords, dukes and duchesses, it not only interested me no liquor was served but that every man stopped to shake hands with Theodore, an internationally famous head waiter. Little by little we learn our multi-millionaires are just Eddie Guest folks after all.

Among liabilities listed on the bankruptcy petition of a high flying bachelor—and as Harry Bulger used to sing "No matter how high they fly they always have to light"—was a floral bill. The florist had been instructed to send orchids daily to a dame of the moment. When he forgot her, he forgot to tell the florist and the bill reached $4,340. And that is saying it with flowers, boys.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

One of the things about health that worry me is mankind's neglect of the accepted things in medicine. When I say this, I mean preventive medicine. To tell the truth I am far less interested in curative medicine than I am in the prevention of disease.

When you are really sick, if you will recall it, almost invariably I say, "Consult your family doctor. Nobody can go far towards the curing of disease unless a personal examination is possible. To treat an individual case of illness is the business of the trained physician who can take direct charge of the patient."

It is my particular job to keep you away from sickness. I am striving to make you live such a life that it won't be necessary to have a worry about this, because they know that very few indeed of the human family will follow the path of hygiene far enough to escape everything except the last illness.

I have told about my old friend who was always saying, "I can resist anything except temptation." The trouble with us is that we enjoy hearing about how to live and how to avoid disease, but we can't quite come to the point of giving up practices which lead to sickness.

Am I right about this? Do you ever eat a lot more than your judgment approves? Do you rob yourself of sleep many a night, knowing all the time how miserable you will be next day? Do you go out to a party in cold weather, wearing garments that are far too gauzy for Winter time?

You know you do these things and worse. Why? Because you cannot resist the temptation. You can resist anything except temptation. And vanity, to say nothing more of the weakness of the flesh, are too much for all of us. We give in many a time, even though we know full well that the fiddler must be paid.

Are we ashamed of ourselves? Secretly we are.

Now how in the world did I get into this frame of mind? I started out to warn you against neglecting to do the things that guard against disease. There are certain conclusions in science that are accepted by almost all informed persons. Vaccination against smallpox is one of these. Inoculation against diphtheria and typhoid fever are others.

Of course, I do not disregard the objections of a small group who insist that such preventive measures are useless and, indeed, harmful. There is no need of re-debating this question. We are not in agreement and cannot be.

But, for my part, I am willing to have you go along without attending to these matters. The details I leave to the practicing physicians. It is my single effort to recall to your thought the importance of doing the things which you are confident are necessary, but which for reasons of your own you neglect to do.

Nations, if not empires, were destroyed by malaria. Not until it was found that a certain type of mosquito carried the disease, did the world know how to prevent malaria. It is practically unknown today in sections where it used to be the chief enemy of man.

It is just as foolish to neglect those measures that protect the individual against disease, as it would be to neglect the extermination of malaria which is capable of laying low a whole community.

Slight To Agriculture.

Among the students at the Massachusetts Agricultural college, only nine per cent are giving major attention to subjects that pertain to agriculture. The 91 per cent and their friends are clamoring for the legislature to change the name of the school and eliminate the word agriculture. They insist it is a misnomer and has brought unpleasantness to those not studying agriculture. In commenting on the situation presented and the reasons the New England Homestead resents the apparent slight given to agriculture and wants a better reason given and better arguments presented. The type of argument used in demanding the change must have been made by thoughtless people if they really intended their efforts to dishonor agriculture. The exact opposite should be the goal. Agriculture is one of the great basic industries in New England and in all other sections of the country and states should exert themselves to promote its interests and develop its prosperity. —Ohio State Journal.

Once Overs

Good Nature is Rewarded.

As you grow older do you grow more irritable?
You are easily disturbed and you don't try to control your anger. It is not as easy as it used to be to check your impulses to be sarcastic and belligerent and you are getting cranky.

To avoid everything that includes hard work is your big desire.

You know that you are slipping physically and you become more snappish and somehow you don't care if you are.

You are fast losing your desire to be pleasing to your associates.

Sometimes you are surprised to note how far this indifference to the good opinion of others has carried you. People in general do not interest you as they formerly did.

It is easier to censure than to praise.

In other words, you are allowing yourself to do the things that will soon leave you practically friendless. You are going to lose your business, and if working for another you will doubtless lose your job.

It is easy to procure good-natured employees, so you may find that your illnature has worked you out of a job.

HISTORY repeats itself again

ON January 7, 1926, the Pontiac Six came into existence. It had bodies by Fisher. It sold for $825. It introduced real luxury and beauty to buyers in the low-priced field.

But Pontiac's builders did not rest content with their early triumph. They knew that American people are constantly on the lookout for new and finer things. So in February, 1927, they introduced the New and Finer Pontiac Six. And it was lower in price than ever, selling for $775. Then, in July, greatly increased production enabled Pontiac's builders to reduce the price again. Now Pontiac sold for $745.

Came 1928, and with it a still finer Pontiac. Even then the price remained only $745. And after six months, Pontiac was made faster, more powerful and more attractive than ever.

This brief review gives you an idea of something that is coming. Automobile history is repeating itself again. Soon Oakland will present a brand new Pontiac Six, an even greater advancement over other low-priced cars available today than the original Pontiac represented in 1926.

THE DREAMING VILLAGE WHERE THE STORY BEGINS

THE WIFE—A WOMAN OF THE HEARTH

THE HUSBAND—AT WAR WITH HIS CONSCIENCE

The Story in Part.

In a dreaming village which is typical of rural life throughout the world, a Man and his Wife lived, worked and were happy. There was peace upon the village and upon their lives. Simple and honest people, naive as the baby which was theirs, and they were content with existence.

The Man was known for the strength to his body and the firm quality of his character, and the Wife for her virtue and tenderness. Also, she was beautiful, but this she did not know. Theirs were the pleasures of the countryside. Glorious dawns or golden sunsets were earthly bits of paradise for the Wife. A test of work well done would please the Man.

The village reposed in a valley near a wide lake, serene and at peace with the far-off world outside. And in the summer, when the hills loomed green and the dust in the road turned soft and yellow, the city people would come for their holidays.

Then the village would come quickly to life and there would flash with the white of where. The lake would flash with the white of canvas sails, and back in the woods, sounds of gay laughter would ring through the corridors of the trees as the picnic parties gathered.

It was in the gay season that there came from the city a Woman, full of wiles of sophistication and hungry in soul and body for the primitive things. She was thoroughly used to the paths of worldly knowledge and to her all the beauty of life lay in the way of wealth and fame and power. The soul was a thing one talked about and, sometimes dimly recognized.

It was inevitable that the strange Woman from the gay places would come upon the strong Man of the village. His masculine virility was a thing for her to marvel at, and likewise, her feminine charm was a thing for him to admire.

Curiously has ever brought the opposites together. A lowland dweller seeks to scale the mountain, and an eagle of the crags looks down with longing to the plains. And so, as these two met, and talked, the Man in his halting, awkward way, the Woman in her knowledge of the crowded places, each wanted the other.

It was natural enough—the ever recurring call of the known to the unknown.

"Come to the city with me," pleaded the Woman in her moment of daring. "But—what of my Wife?" demanded the Man. "Couldn't—there be—the—the lake," she replied. "Would it not be possible for her to drown?" That was in the early evening at the time of sunset.

Good News For East Liverpool

Decision of the Pennsylvania Railroad company to restore excursion train service to Rock Springs park, in Chester, next summer is not only encouraging to the owners of the West Virginia amusement place, but is also good news for East Liverpool.

Through the efforts of C. C. Macdonald, lessee of the park, once the mecca for thousands of picnickers from all parts of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, the railroad owners have promised to operate as many as three trains daily over the Pankagle and Cleveland and Pittsburgh divisions.

The coming season should witness scenes common in the days of 1911, the peak year at Rock Springs, when trainloads of pleasure-seekers were poured into the Chester park which was recognized as one of the beauty spots in the tri-state zone.

The significance of the restoration of excursion service, which is essential to the success of the park, is seen in the fact that approximately $80,000 was spent by picnickers in East Liverpool stores every summer in the bygone days. And this conservative estimate did not include street car fares, money used for amusement purposes or the cost of railroad tickets.

Revocation of the ban on picnic trains, too, will mean an extensive improvement program at Rock Springs, according to the park lessee. And this should help business in the East Liverpool district, for it will mean the outlay of money for materials and will provide jobs for scores.

It is another harbinger of prosperity.

Cooper's Inaugural Address

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper's inaugural address contains much that is worth while. It was the pronouncement of a business man who hopes to conduct a business-like administration—who believes that the business of this great commonwealth leads itself to the same sort of direction as the business of any private enterprise.

In his address to the general assembly, he carried out one of his chief campaign pledges—a request for less legislation and the correction of many of the abuses previous legislatures have saddled upon the people in the name of law.

Danger in legislative experimentation was stressed by Mr. Cooper, and he called upon the assembly to unite behind his administration in giving Ohio an outstanding, business-like regime for the forthcoming two years. One looks forward expectantly to such an administration, inasmuch as Mr. Cooper sheared off all superlatives in his speeches and got down to the job in hand in the fewest possible words.

Politicians in the past have, in dozens of instances, been Ohio's governor. But today the chief executive is a man who has made a singular success of his own business—a man who has built up a state-wide prestige as an economist, as a conservative, as a builder. And with such a background it should naturally follow that the state will within a comparatively short time begin to feel the change that the new administration will try to bring about—a change for the good, it is anticipated—a change for the benefit of the entire commonwealth.

Free rein for private enterprise, no unwarranted supervision of business and industry, the doing away of conflict between utilities and the state, greater regard for the public welfare, a policy of administrative economy all along the line, and obedience to the law, without regard to what law it may be—these were the outstanding declarations of Mr. Cooper in his inaugural address. He asked the people to help—and he is entitled to the support of everyone.

Infants and Church Services

The California state department of health, following research in the bureau of child hygiene, has announced that young children should not be taken to church. Nervous systems of babies, it has learned, are instruments whose keyboards should not be unduly stressed. Undue excitement and sustained periods of variation from the normal quiet of infants ought to be avoided.

The loud noises that are attendant at a church service have been discovered as particularly harmful to the sensation-receiving structure of babies. This like-wise has been declared true as regards concerts and theatrical performances, or an event where bright lights and conspicuous sounds are present.

There is little doubt but what this learned opinion will receive the whole-hearted approval and active support of mothers to whom the welfare of their infants is a matter of prime importance. When it is a question of producing strong and healthy babies every method which will aid in accomplishing the desired result should be pressed into service.

And, of course, there is the other side to the matter. Nervous systems of many adults are not fool-proof arrangements that can handle an indiscriminate assortment of sensations. After all there is no particular advantage to be gained by placing a considerable portion of a group in a state of nervous irritability, and this is quite often the result produced upon an assemblage in which is present a child whose sensibilities have been disturbed to the point of producing an active outburst of complaint.

The rights and privileges of adults to enjoy and appreciate a sacred service, or a concert, or a show may be negligible in comparison with the claim that a baby has to the attainment of health, but when both results flow from the same source there is no reason why the practice under discussion should not be established.

Presidents are not superstitious. President Coolidge entertains 13 United States senators at a Friday breakfast, and the so-called hoodoo figure was the late Woodrow Wilson's lucky number.

Street Commissioner McLaughlin and his co-workers realize that clean streets are factors in curbing the spread of disease, judging from their all-night work in the business district.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—To southerners, especially, the tale of present-day belief in witchcraft comes as no surprise, for southerners were brought up in the knowledge that all about them their negro servants and neighbors believed in witches and that some held secret rites. It is even stated that some of the white illiterates of the mountain regions set great store by ancient sorceries.

There are many types of witches and many types of strange worship and practices which their devotees would be offended to hear called witchcraft. Every one is based on the hope of mental peace or physical cure of some ailment; the basic idea always embodies the recognition of a higher power. It must be remembered that Jesus Himself was put to death because he practiced miracles and instructed the people in a doctrine inimical to the elder gods. Witches were burned in European countries, notably in Germany, England, and Scotland, and put to death in Massachusetts. The York episode is but an unfortunate incident in the history of witchcraft. It is an old, old story and while there doubtless are many believers in Pennsylvania, the believers living in the United States today are to be found in every section.

Perhaps the strangest and certainly the oldest body is the Ancient Order of Rosicrucians. No one is aware how many members the order has but some index may be obtained from the fact that 200 Americans are sailing this month for Egypt to engage in a ritual said to be about 3300 years old. It will be noted that they belong to an order reputed to have been established centuries before Christ, so they could hardly be deemed Christians.

There is a material divergence in the claims of the branches of the Rosicrucians. The original story known in modern times is that between 1614 and 1616 three books were published at Cassel in Germany which purported to tell the story of a secret society's formation in the fourteenth century. One Christian Rosenkreutz was said to have been the founder. The order was so secret, it was stated, that one member was not known to another. In some forms the tale runs that a member of one lodge knew no member of another lodge was a Rosicrucian but all members knew there were many lodges.

Finally some secret societies did arise, calling themselves Rosicrucians. These were almost all organized in Germany and from the towns of Germany may be traced the York witchcraft as that section was to a considerable degree populated by Germans.

It is a very notable fact that the symbolically inscribed tokens and charms which have come to public light as the result of the York trial display queer characters having a quite definite resemblance to Egyptian and Arabian ancient writings and carvings from that part of the world.

The American branch of the Rosicrucians contends that their society and their ritual come down from the Pharaoh Amen-Hotep, who is declared the founder. Amen-Hotep was the son-in-law of Tut-Ankh-Amen, whose sumptuous burial place in the Valley of the Kings in Egypt has been excavated recently.

Probably the most interesting figure who ever practiced Rosicrucianism was Joseph Balsamo whom the caustic Thomas Carlyle characterized as "the quack of quacks, the most perfect scoundrel that in these latter ages has marked the world's history." Balsamo was born in 1743, the son of a shopkeeper in a small way at Palermo. He is known to history as Count Cagliostro. From England the Count and Countess traveled to Russia where he was received with honors and finally settled in Strasburg in Germany. His fame in healing spread all over Europe. The Prince Cardinal de Rohan, a great French prince of both church and state either because of some illness or because of curiosity, sent word to Strasburg that he would like to see the Count. The Count immediately returned word that if the Prince was ill he should come to him; if not he did not care to see him. This only increased the Prince Cardinal's curiosity and he went to Strasburg and from that time on completely fell under Cagliostro's domination. The Count and Countess returned to Paris with him.

But the Prince Cardinal fell into disfavor at the court and both he and the Count were thrust into the Bastille where they languished for nine months. Then they were released. The Count was expelled from France, and never again did he find the old welcome from the courts of Europe. On visiting Rome he fell into the hands of the Holy Office which made short work of the whole matter, ordered the Egyptian Masonry manuscript burned by the common hangman, cursed any who adhered to the belief, and sent the Count to prison for life where he died in a short time. The Countess, who had been imprisoned in a convent, survived him for some time.

Both are rubber-lined, of course.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Midtown Manhattan is becoming stuffier, like the Strasburg goose, with skyscrapers. A mere casual inspection of the skyline from the sidewalk develops a nice fat neck-ache. This new area of topless towers is confined largely to what is known as the Grand Central District.

One of those sharks for statistics discovers the tenants alone in the cloud-piercing strip outnumber the combined population of Cheyenne, Brownsville, Reno, Emporia and Albuquerque. In actual figures more than 60,000 people. The Woolworth building down town houses 10,000.

New York's psychology is that of the small town. Just as a new depot will spruce up the north end of Main street, so has the Grand Central station inspired the mighty building rush about it. Shortly the tallest building in the world—the Reynolds will be finished at Lexington avenue and 42d street.

It will stand 67 stories and 808 feet above the street level. The new Grand Central building spanning Park Avenue is another whooper, and the Chanin building a stone's throw away rises to 52 stories. Next door west to the Hotel Belmont is another 53-story affair nearly completed.

Alarmists are crying the city is being overbuilt and what-will-we-do? Yet a 42-story office building a little off the beaten path in the same neighborhood was recently filled two weeks after it was opened. And at the moment there is an unsatisfied demand for office space.

The big problem is traffic congestion. Only the floating hotel population is able to live in the Grand Central district. The actual office workers must live from five to thirty miles away, and as all arrive and depart at the same time, the result is a baw-wrinkler.

There are, for instance, three blocks on 42d street where it has been found 10,000 may be accommodated on the sidewalks comfortably. Yet twice daily more than 50,000 people crowd into the same space. There is an actual record of street traffic being held up 58 minutes in this block. Two business hours and hundreds of thousands are lost daily and nothing can be done.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

One of the things about health that worry me, is mankind's neglect of the accepted things in medicine. When I say this, I mean preventive medicine. To tell the truth I am far less interested in curative medicine than I am in the prevention of disease.

When you are really sick, if you will recall it, almost invariably I say, "Consult your family doctor. Nobody can go far towards the curing of disease unless a personal examination is possible. To treat an individual case of illness is the business of a trained physician who can take direct charge of the patient."

It is my particular job to keep you away from sickness. I am striving to make you live such a life that it won't be necessary to have a worry about this, because they know that very few indeed of the human family will follow the path of hygiene far enough to escape everything except the last illness.

I have told about my old friend who was always saying, "I can resist anything except temptation." The trouble with us is that we enjoy hearing about how to live and how to avoid disease, but we can't quite come to the point of giving up practices which lead to sickness.

Am I right about this? Do you ever eat a lot more than your judgment approves? Do you rob yourself of sleep many a night, knowing all the time how miserable you will be next day? Do you go out to a party in cold weather, wearing garments that are far too gauzy for Winter time?

You know you do these things and worse. Why? Because you cannot resist the temptation. You can resist anything except temptation.

Patience and mental desire and vanity, to say nothing more of the weaknesses of the flesh, are too much for all of us. We give in many a time, even though we know full well that the fiddler must be paid.

Are we ashamed of ourselves? Secretly we are.

Now how in the world did I get into this frame of mind? I started out to warn you against neglecting to do the things that guard against disease.

There are certain conclusions in science that are accepted by almost all informed persons. Vaccination against small-pox is one of these. Inoculation against diphtheria and typhoid fever are others.

Of course, I do not disregard the objections of a small group who insist that such preventive measures are useless and, indeed, harmful. There is no need of re-debating this question. We are not in agreement and cannot be.

But, for my part, I am willing to have you go along without attending to these matters. The details I leave to the practicing physicians. It is my single effort to reach to your thought the importance of doing the things which you are confident are necessary, but which for reasons of your own you neglect to do.

Nations, if not empires, were destroyed by malaria. Not until it was found that a certain type of mosquito carried the disease, did the world know how to prevent malaria. It is practically unknown today in sections where it used to be the chief enemy of man.

It is just as foolish to neglect those measures that protect the individual against disease, as it would be to neglect the extermination of malaria which is capable of laying low a whole community.

Slight To Agriculture.
Among the students at the Massachusetts Agricultural college only nine per cent are giving major attention to subjects that pertain to agriculture. The 81 per cent and their friends are clamoring for the legislature to change the name of the school and eliminate the word agriculture. They insist it is a misnomer and has brought unpleasantness to those not studying agriculture. In commenting on the situation presented and the reasons the New England Homestead resents the apparent slight given to agriculture and wants a better reason given and better arguments presented. The type of argument used in demanding the change must have been made by thoughtless people if they really intended their efforts to dishonor agriculture. The exact opposite should be the goal. Agriculture is one of the great basic industries in New England and in all other sections of the country and states should exert themselves to promote its interests and develop its prosperity. — Ohio State Journal.

Good Nature Is Rewarded.
As you grow older do you grow more irritable?
You are easily disturbed and you don't try to control your anger.
It is not as easy as it used to be to check your impulses to be sarcastic and belligerent and you are getting cranky.
To avoid everything that includes hard work is your big desire.
You know that you are slipping physically and you become more snappish and somehow you don't care if you are.
You are fast losing your desire to be pleasing to your associates.
Sometimes you are surprised to note how far this indifference to the good opinion of others has carried you. People in general do not interest you as they formerly did.
It is easier to censure than to praise.
In other words, you are allowing yourself to do the things that will soon leave you practically friendless.
You are going to lose your business, and if working for another you will doubtless lose your job.
It is easy to procure good-natured employees, so you may find that your ill-nature has worked you out of a job.

HISTORY repeats itself again

ON January 7, 1926, the Pontiac Six came into existence. It had bodies by Fisher. It sold for $325. It introduced real luxury and beauty to buyers in the low-priced field.

But Pontiac's builders did not rest content with their early triumph. They knew that American people are constantly on the lookout for new and finer things. So in February, 1927, they introduced the New and Finer Pontiac Six. And it was lower in price than ever, selling for $775. Then, in July, greatly increased production enabled Pontiac's builders to reduce the price again. Now Pontiac sold for $745.

Came 1928, and with it a still finer Pontiac. Even then the price remained only $745. And after six months, Pontiac was made faster, more powerful and more attractive than ever.

This brief review gives you an idea of something that is coming. Automobile history is repeating itself again. Soon Oakland will present a brand new Pontiac Six, an even greater advancement over other low-priced cars available today than the original Pontiac represented in 1926.

THE DREAMING VILLAGE WHERE THE STORY BEGINS

THE WIFE—A WOMAN OF THE HEARTH

THE HUSBAND—AT WAR WITH HIS CONSCIENCE

The Story in Part.

IN a dreaming village which might be typical of rural life throughout the world, a Man and his Wife lived, worked and were happy. There was peace upon the village and upon their lives. Simple and honest people, naive as the baby which was theirs, and they were content with existence.

The Man was known for the strength to his body and the firm quality of his character, and the Wife for her virtue and tenderness. Also, she was beautiful, but this she did not know. There were the pleasures of the countryside. Glorious dawns or golden sunsets were earthly bits of paradise for the Wife. A test of work well done would please the Man.

The village reposed in a valley near a wide lake, serene and at peace with the far-off world outside. And in the summer, when the hills loomed green and the dust in the road turned soft and yellow, the city people would come for their holidays.

Then the village activities would come quickly to life and there would be unwonted gaiety everywhere. The lake would flash with the white of canvas sails, and back in the woods, sounds of gay laughter would ring through the corridors of the trees as the picnic parties gathered. It was in the gay season that there came from the city a Woman, full of wiles of sophistication and hungry in soul and body for the primitive things. She was thoroughly used to the paths of worldly knowledge and to her all the beauty of life lay in the way of wealth and fame and power. The soul was a thing one talked about and, sometimes dimly recognized.

It was inevitable that the strange Woman from the gay places would come upon the strong Man of the village. His masculine virility was a thing for her to marvel at, and likewise, her feminine charm was a thing for him to admire.

Curiously has ever brought the opposites together. A lowland dweller seeks to scale the mountain, and an eagle of the crags looks down with longing to the plains. And so, as these two met, and talked, the Man in his halting lowland way, the Woman in her knowledge of the crowded places, each wanted the other.

It was natural enough—the ever recurring call of the known to the unknown.

"Come to the city with me," pleaded the Woman in her moment of daring.

"But—what of my Wife?" demanded the Man. "Couldn't—there is the—the lake," she replied. "Would it not be possible for her to drown?" That was in the early evening at the time of sunset.

DIRTY MONEY PERIOD LOOMS AFTER APRIL 1

Stop New Paper of Present Size for Three Months.

SMALLER BILLS

Abbreviated Greenbacks
Will Reach Banks
On July 1.

By Robert S. Thornburgh.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The United States is "in for" a dirty money period of three months beginning about April 1.

The treasury announced today that no more new paper of the present size, would be issued after April 1, as the government prepares to withdraw the old greenbacks, and to replace them with the new small-sized currency now in the course of manufacture.

The new money will be about one-third smaller than that in circulation today. Manufacture of the present paper will cease about six weeks prior to the termination of shipments of this size from Washington to the federal reserve banks.

Expect "Hoarding" for Souvenirs.
On July 1 the abbreviated greenbacks will reach the public through the reserve banks, the government's agency for distribution, according to the plan of Secretary Mellon.

Initial issues of the small currency, in years to come, will become of considerable value to collectors, in the opinion of officials. It was anticipated that many of the first bills going into the market would be "hoarded" by those who have souvenir proclivities.

Actual printing of the new money was started some months ago and millions of dollars in paper are now being "aged" at the bureau of engraving and printing. The aging process prolongs the life of paper money.

Bank Notes Unchanged.
The new designs will initially affect all paper money but National bank notes. If congress decides to retain National bank notes as a part of the currency system, Secretary Mellon will ask for authority to make these notes conform to the sizes of the new money.

HOOVER PHONES TO BELGIAN KING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Through the medium of the trans-Atlantic telephone, President-elect Hoover today broadcast to his wartime friends in Belgium a message of greeting and thanks on the occasion of their assembly in a public square in Brussels to celebrate his election to the presidency.

BANDIT-KILLER SPURNS RELIGION

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 19.—Paul Jaworski, who is doomed to die in the electric chair on Monday, refused spiritual guidance today.

"There a priest here to see you, Paul," Warden W. J. McFarland told the bandit-killer and former choir singer.

"Nothin' doin'!" Paul shook his head. The priest departed.

In the steel-barred death house house just 16 steps from the chair, the erstwhile leader of the Flathead gang was expected to have one visitor before he walked the fatal paces—his sister, Catherine Lucille Logan, of Detroit.

The warden announced that Mrs. Logan had telegraphed a plea that she be allowed to see Paul. Permission was granted.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from the Municipal airport here at 9:05 this morning for an unannounced eastern destination after being "marooned" for 18 hours by rain and snow.

Lindbergh is flying a Curtiss monoplane and is thought to be bound for New York.

PROMISE MADE

But One Other Coolidge
Appointee Likely To Stay.

(Copyright, 1929, By International

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—William M. Jardine, who has been a target for the farm bloc through two sessions of congress, is to carry over into the new Hoover administration as secretary of agriculture under present plans, it was learned authoritatively here today.

The matter of his retaining his present post has been discussed by the president-elect and the Kansas at several conferences, and the latter has agreed to remain, barring unforeseen circumstances arising between now and March 4.

Two members of President Coolidge's cabinet will succeed themselves in the new administration—Jardine as head of the department of agriculture, and Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury. It is considered doubtful if any other members of the present cabinet will remain.

NO POWER, COURT USES LIGHTER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Jan. 19.—A cigarette lighter saved the day, or rather the night, at a session of common pleas court here.

When a miniature tornado cut off the power and light in the courtroom during a night hearing, Judge W. W. Cowan took his lighter and using the small trickle of flame as the only illumination, he gave his instructions to the jury and adjourned court until this morning.

Two spectators were slightly injured when the wind broke several windows, scattering shattered glass over the court room.

MARSHAL FOCH WINNING FIGHT

Condition of War Veteran an .77, is Improving.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Improvement in the condition of Marshal Foch continued today, physicians attending him made known in the following short bulletin this morning:

"Marshal Foch's improvement continues."

Both the heart and kidney conditions of the 77-year-old veteran are more favorable, it was said. He slept well last night and has a good appetite.

Although anxiety regarding the marshal is lessening, physicians have not yet pronounced him out of danger.

Among the many callers at the marshal's home yesterday was American Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who had just arrived from a visit to the United States.

Jah Khan, Habibullah means "darling of God." Eastern rulers like such titles. Tambarlane or Timur the Lame, called himself "the earth shake," and that was no exaggeration.

Attila was called the curse of God, and he boasted that where his horse trod the grass never grew again.

LUCKILY for us prosaic white people, these "darlings," "earth shakers," etc., know nothing of machinery, and waste little time in thought. So white men sell them goods and control their destinies in the long run. It is even suggested that Britain is back of Allah's darling, and helped him to his new job.

THE Rev. M. Allen Keith, of the Methodist Episcopal church, Lincoln, Neb., asks: "Why do you, in the Omaha Bee-News, call the peace pact 'a sort of solemn promise'?"

IT IS a sort of promise, because Britain reserves the right to do as Britain chooses, in British zones of influence, spread over half the globe.

"No war" is a nice theory, but you must not expect Britain to apply the pact to 300,000,000 in India, other millions in Africa, etc. You must distinguish between war and "policing interior races."

IT'S a sort of promise, because France is spending billions of francs on more warships, including huge submarines able to travel round the world. They are not built exclusively for scientific exploration.

AND Germany, obliged to be cautious, for the present, is found preparing secretly for possible war against Poland, much to the indignation of Britain and France.

However, the pact solemnly signed states what is not true, in a way to make sentimentalists happy. That will put a stop to tiresome conversation, for a while.

THANKS to Senators Reed and Moses, this nation expressly exempts the Monroe Doctrine from the peace pact, reserving the right to fight for the doctrine in various other ways.

We took the main spring out of the watch. If we now proceed to build fast cruisers, submarines and fighting planes, to prepare for peace pact possibilities, no harm will have been done.

LAST year it cost $10,589,000 to run Harvard, money well spent, if only one new and important idea should be born of all the young heads.

The boys paid in tuition fees $2,400,033.09. Football and baseball brought in $998,959.58. Lectures on philosophy do not draw any "gate."

IT'S a fine college, none better perhaps, but every college recalls the French saying about travel: Les voyages forment la jeunesse, quand ils ne la deforment pas. "Travel forms youth, when it does not deform it."

Colleges form youth, if they teach it to think for itself. They deform youth, when, as often happens, they teach it to think in a groove, all the little brains working along the same line.

THAT Edison or Lincoln would still have been Edison or Lincoln after four years at Harvard is improbable.

This is mentioned to comfort those that can not send children to college. Real life and hard work are a good college, with many brilliant graduates.

BUILDING contractors in New York fight the worker's effort to establish a five-day week, with extra pay to make up for the lost day.

Electrical contractors have yielded to the men, giving the workers five days a week, at something over $13 per day, a substantial increase.

In SOME lines the five-day week appears to be not yet feasible, or practical. But not long ago, the eight-hour day seemed preposterous. It is established now with Saturday afternoons off, in many unions.

FEDERAL MEN RAID STEAMER

Inspectors Search Liner
Rochambeau for Liquor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—In one of the most sensational shipping "raids" since war times, 10 special customs inspectors today boarded the French line steamer Rochambeau in search for contraband liquor.

The inspectors, to be relieved by others, will work night and day until all pieces of cargo and baggage has been gone over with a fine toothed comb.

Colonel W. S. Consow declared some French steamships have been delivering liquor to bootleg boats. Recently a large cargo of manifested liquor was found on the pier.

make a five-day week possible, for plain business reasons. Workers earning sixty billion dollars a year, must be the best customers of motor factories and other industries. They need one week day to spend and enjoy what they earn, and what they buy.

Certainly, prosperity has not diminished with the arrival of the eight-hour day and higher wages.

PREDICTS NEW STATE BLOCK

Gov. Cooper Says
Office Building Will Be Erected.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—Prediction that a new state office building will be erected by the state of Ohio was voiced today by Governor Myers Cooper.

Cooper made this prediction upon his return to the governor's office after spending several hours inspecting conditions in the state highway, industrial relations, and public works departments, all housed in the old Hartman hotel building, East Main street.

The governor said that the situation as he found it this morning was "eloquent argument for a new state office building."

He said he expected to visit all other state departments and the various state institutions throughout Ohio before the end of this year.

Cooper registered belief that the present legislature will provide for the appointment of a commission empowered to give careful consideration to the selection of a site and to make necessary arrangements for the construction of an office building.

Calling attention to the fire hazards existing in the Hartman hotel building and to the unsatisfactory condition resulting from the widely scattered state offices here, the governor said it would be "good business" on the part of the state to place all these departments in one state office building.

and property damage of more than $25,000 done. A one-room house occupied by Otto Bunston, 45, was picked up and carried 250 yards. He suffered several broken ribs. Robert Rightsell, 10, a neighbor's boy, who was also in the house was knocked unconscious and was still in that condition today. He may die. Several miles of telephone wires were reported down.

Four horses and eight cows were killed near Ashland when the barn of C. J. Latter was demolished. His house was also unroofed.

At St. Clairsville, two persons were injured when the wind shattered several windows in the common pleas court room as a night session was being held.

Cleveland reported considerable damage from flooded cellars. Telephone poles blown down, windows shattered and trees uprooted was the damage suffered in Akron.

Chimneys Down, Trees Uprooted.
Later advices from Ashland county said that two children, Leslie, 14, and Lamar, 12, sons of William Kate, were slightly injured when the barn of the Kate farm was demolished.

Three horses were killed.

Chimneys were blown down and trees uprooted at Marysville, and several barns in the county were destroyed by fire as a result of lightning bolts. One barn was blown several hundred feet.

Twenty-one persons at Dayton were forced to flee from their homes because of high water. Property damage was also reported from the high wind.

WASHOUT BLAMED

Coupling Snaps, Saving
Many From Possible
Death.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Two trainmen were killed, another seriously injured and 14 passengers less seriously injured when the engine, baggage car and first coach of a Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo express train plunged down a steep embankment between Stony Creek and Vinemount, Ontario, last night, according to word received here early today at the road's offices here. The forward cars were derailed by a washout in the track.

The dead: Mark L. Rickett, of Hamilton, Ont.; the fireman.

Thomas L. Sweeney, of Hamilton, an express agent.

Engineer Breaks Legs.
The engineer, Patrick J. Gant, of Hamilton, broke both legs when he jumped from the cab. He and the injured passengers were taken to the Welland, Ont., hospital.

Miraculously none of the passengers was killed.

The express was bound from Hamilton to Toronto. The wreck occurred at 8:10 p. m.

The snapping of a coupling connecting the forward cars and the rear coaches saved many passengers in the latter cars from possible death. The rear cars did not roll down the embankment.

Plunge 100 Feet.
Those in the cars which plunged more than 100 feet down the cliff were piled up into the bottom of an ice-coated creek at the foot of the embankment. Rescuers at first had little to guide them except the cries of the injured, but they later obtained powerful searchlights which pierced the inky blackness.

The slippery footing also hampered rescue work. Ambulances finally arrived at the scene and the injured were taken to the hospital.

The dead fireman was found pinned in the engine cab.

THE REMARKABLE NEW

"FINGER-TIP CONTROL"

Greater beauty and improved design in new Whippets and Willys-Knights

The ultra-modern lines and larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet are winning the enthusiastic praise of Four and light Six buyers, while the new style Willys-Knight Six is the largest, most beautiful and most powerful Knight-engine car ever offered at so low a price.

See and examine these superb cars without delay! An immediate order will aid in early delivery.

What it means to you in driving convenience and safety

Willys-Overland is the first producer of automobiles to equip all its passenger cars and commercial vehicles with the wonderful new "Finger-Tip Control."

A single button, conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This fundamental improvement does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button. You can keep your foot always on the brake when starting or re-starting on a hill—an obvious safety advantage of major importance.

"Finger-Tip Control" also avoids changing from the comfortable driving position to reach a light switch on the dash. You can at all times keep your eyes on the road, and the hand that operates the button flashes back to the rim of the wheel in any steering emergency.

Highs Defeat Stubbers; Hope To Stop Marietta Here Tonight

Lindell Decides Battle With Last-Second Goal

Forward Sinks Two-pointer as Timer's Gun Barks to Give Potters 15-13 Win; Girls Drop 22-14 Decision in Prelim.

STUEBENVILLE, O., Jan. 19.—Winging one through the air in Wells high gym here last night just as the timer's gun banged away for the last time, with the score knotted at 13-13, Forward Lindell of East Liverpool high school tossed the final field goal that gave the Potters a 15-13 decision over Charley Cartledge's Stubbers in the first meeting of the rivals this season.

Wellsville Girls Win, Boys Lose

Tiger Squads Divide Double Bill With Quaker Combines.

WELLSVILLE, O., Jan. 19.—Dot Dornick and Velma Connor, field goal sharks and a pair of brilliant stars for the Wellsville high school girls' team, bade farewell to scholastic athletics last night in a 34 to 21 triumph over the strong Salem maids last night at Wellsville.

The downfall checked the triumphant march of the Quaker lassies and whether they can overcome the defeat to go on to the county title remains to be seen in future contests. The Orange and Black lassies won where their co-defenders, Dave Evans' boys, lost, the Stone quint getting away with a 45 to 24 conquest in the second game on the night's program. The first half was close, the Tigers staying in the running until the third period. For a portion of the first period Wellsville led, 5-1. Salem tied it at 5-5 and went into the lead as the quarter ended. The Tigers came back in the second to tie it at 13-13. Salem forged ahead but the home five spurred to knot the tally at 17-17. Long chances then put the visitors ahead as the half ended. Salem opened a fast attack in the third quarter and afterwards was never headed.

Wellsville girls outscored the north county lassies in every quarter of their game save the last. Salem Girls G. F. T. Canzoneri finished his husky foe with a distressing body attack over a span of five rounds, the knockout coming when the New York Italian sank a right uppercut over the Cuban's heart. Santiago crumpled to the floor. He tried to rise, but his strength was gone.

Newell Squads Cop Twin Bill With Rogers

Coach Lorah's Newell high school basketballers captured both ends of the double header with the Rogers high school agr gations last night at the Public auditorium, the boys scoring an easy 39-19 victory, while the girls, meeting more opposition, won by a score of 25 to 17.

The boys' contest was mostly Newell all the way, the West Virginians outplaying their rivals with the exception of the second period.

The Newell aggregation led at the start, Gregory and Sage registering field goals for a lead of four points. The Rogers boys put on a scoring spree, and five straight points put them in the lead. Sage's field goal gave the Newellites the lead again and after that they were never in the rear, the first half ending 16 to 12 in Newell's favor.

The West Virginians made a run-away of the game in the final half, Smith and Sage hitting the cords for field baskets that soon put the game on ice for the Newell five. All the Newell lads played good basketball, Smith and Sage doing the bigger part of the scoring.

Tullis, Baker, and Webber were the outstanding performers for Rogers.

In the girls' contest, it looked like a victory for the Rogers lassies when they were leading 7 to 2, it the end of the first period.

During the second period the Newell made get going, overcame the Rogers girls' lead and were setting the pace, 11 to 10, at the end of the first half.

The Newell sextet kept the lead all the rest of the way and had the game cinched when the third period ended.

All the Newell lassies performed in a capable manner, Moore with seven field goals being the scoring star of the game.

VANGUARD

A Highly Amusing Story of a Romance
Aboard a Millionaire's Yacht.

By Arnold Bennett

Mr. Sutherland rang the bell once, in his private sitting room at the Hotel Splendide, and expected the prompt arrival of the waiter. Mr. Sutherland was a man of 50, clean-shaven, spare, rather austere, with the responsible and slightly harassed demeanor which comes of having married young and remained married, and the thin lips and logical jaw which usually develop on the faces of men who have been called to the bar. Brown hair that might soon, but not yet, be described as scanty. Pale blue eyes, whose glance denoted a certain mild self-complacency on the part of Mr. Sutherland. The reasons for the self-complacency were various and sound.

In the first place, Mr. Sutherland was a seventh child, to be which is always a mystical asset in life; and further, his parents had indicated his original position in their family by christening him not Septimus, which is banal, but Septimius, which is rare and distinguished. That extra "i" had virtue for Mr. Sutherland.

In the second place, Mr. Sutherland some thirty years earlier had stroked the Cambridge boat. Nobody, in giving an account of Mr. Sutherland to people who were unacquainted with him, ever omitted to mention this fact, and only cynical or malicious persons would mention also that he had not stroked Cambridge to victory.

The third reason for self-complacency was that Mr. Sutherland was, and knew himself to be, an organizer. He organized everything in his existence, and when, as now, he was enjoying for a space the absence of his delicious, disorganizing wife and girls, and of a devoted, incompetent valet, he could organize with abundance and utterly revel in his talent for organizing.

The apartment gave evidences of organization. Mr. Sutherland was leaving Naples that evening by train. The receipted bill, much stamped, for his sojourn at the Splendide lay open on the center table. His suitcase lay open on a side table, with a couple of books all ready to slip into it. The suitcase was labeled with two labels, one adhesive, the other attached by string. In the bedroom lay Mr. Sutherland's flat American trunk, still open, lest Mr. Sutherland might have forgotten something. It could be snapped to in a second. Hanging over the raised lid of the trunk (which has three labels) was Mr. Sutherland's rug conveniently folded, and on an adjacent chair were his hat, overcoat and gloves. The spectacle of all this organized order gave pleasure to Mr. Sutherland.

The bell was not answered. Mr. Sutherland's organization, however, was not disconcerted by the delay. He always allowed a margin for the imperfections of mankind and the malice of heaven; and now he utilized this margin by systematically opening every drawer in the sitting room, bedroom and bathroom, and demonstrating to himself for the second time that he had forgotten nothing. Thereupon he shut the American trunk.

Septimius Perturbed.

Still the bell was not answered and now Mr. Sutherland began to have a new and dark idea about the organization of the Hotel Splendide, which organization he had hitherto admired without reserve. The Splendide was the best hotel in Naples. There were four other leading and in every way first-class hotels—the Majestic, the Belvidere, the Royal Palace, and the Grand Miramar, and according to advertisement each of these four was also the best hotel in the city. The Splendide, however, had two advantages over its rivals—due to two discoveries made by its designers. The first discovery was that the visitor does not care to overheat everything that passes, by word or action, in the rooms and adjoining his own, or even in the corridor; and the second was that the visitor finds little pleasure in the continual sounding of a bell—once for the waiter, twice for the chambermaid, and thrice for the valet—especially when the rung bell is situated, as it always is, just outside his bedroom door. Hence the designers of the Splendide had established double doors between adjoining rooms and between rooms and corridor, and had entirely done away with the sound of bells. When you pushed the button at the Splendide—the top one for the waiter, the middle one for the chambermaid, and the lower one for the valet—a white, a green, or a red light shone in the corridor above your door and kept on shining until the waiter, the chambermaid, or the valet (duly warned by a bell far, far out of hearing of the visitor) came and extinguished it. Thus, if you closed your double windows, you could live at the Splendide as in the isolated silence and select privacy of the grave until you died from steamheat and lack of ventilation.

It was all most ingenious, and Mr. Sutherland had loved it all. But now he perceived a psychological flaw in this organization. The visitor, having rung without getting a reply, could not be sure whether or not the apparatus was in order. Supposing the distant bell was for some reason not functioning? A terrible thought! Mr. Sutherland, after a further pause, opened the double doors into the corridor and looked forth. Yes, the white light, symbol of his desire for the waiter, was burning over his door and burning brightly, steadily, patiently, waiting for the waiter. But had the bell rung? Mr. Sutherland could not tell and did not know. He did not even know where the bell was to be found. Silence and solitude in the long corridor! Dozens of doors, and only one of them illumined, Mr. Sutherland's!

Septimius felt himself to be a victim, and yet somehow guilty; the white light seemed to accuse him of something. He was at a loss. He knew not what to do. His great gift for organizing had been rendered futile. He hesitated, most absurdly, to step out into the hostile wilderness of the corridor. At last he did step out, and it was though he had come over the top in battle. Then Mr. Sutherland saw a waiter in the distance, and stepped back into the ambush of the doorway and halted the waiter at the moment of passing the door. The waiter, startled out of his professional self-control, gave Septimius a look of murderous hatred.

The glance covered perhaps the tenth of a second and was instantaneously succeeded by the conventional acquiescent smile of his calling; but Septimius had noted it, and was afraid in his heart, for he glanced seemed to symbolize and lay bare the awful secret antagonism which divides the servers from the served—seed of revolutions. Septimius even feared for his life, for he was in a strange and sinister city, where lives were worth much less than in London, and some people might possibly find their advantage in the sudden death of Septimius. "Pooh! Ridiculous!"

"Please bring me the menu," Mr. Sutherland, speaking in English, addressed the waiter, whom he had never seen before. And he carefully spoke as one man to another in order to inculcate his belief in the dogma that all men are equal before heaven. "I shall dine here in my room. And when you serve the dinner let me have the bill with it—receipted. You understand. I'm leaving tonight."

The waiter smiled charmingly to indicate his belief in the dogma that the least wish of a visitor is a law to the waiter. He smiled, bowed and departed. He had understood only two words, "menu" and "bill."

Mr. Sutherland felt reassured, though he had had a shock.

After a brief delay the waiter returned, without the menu, and made a long foreign speech to Mr. Sutherland, not a word of which did Mr. Sutherland comprehend. The black-clad fellow was one of those waiters, prevalent in the splendid hotels of distant and picturesque lands, who can speak no language but their own, and sometimes not even that. Ten key-words of English or French may suffice a waiter for the common affair of human nature's daily food, but in a crisis they quickly prove inadequate.

Mr. Sutherland saw that this was a crisis. He could speak Sutherland-French, slowly, and he now did so. But the waiter's face was an amiable blank before the persuasions of Sutherland-French.

"Menu, menu! Carte, carte, carte!" Mr. Sutherland repeated firmly and kindly but foolishly. The waiter shook his head. At last Mr. Sutherland in blank despair waved him from the room.

"Is it conceivable," thought Septimius, "that in a hotel with the pretensions of the Splendide, they should place you at the mercy of servants with whom it is impossible to communicate?" He saw that it was conceivable, and sighed.

There was only one thing to do—namely to adventure forth into the general publicity and promiscuity of the vast hotel. The necessity for so doing oppressed Mr. Sutherland strangely.

"SUNRISE" TOPS CERAMIC BILL

"Sunrise," the first picture which F. W. Murnau made for William Fox after coming to this country, is scheduled to play at the Ceramic theater, beginning Monday. This picture commanded high attention in New York where it played a long Broadway engagement.

It will bring back to the city in a starring role, Janet Gaynor, the magnetic young star who had the role of Diane in "Seventh Heaven." The other star is George O'Brien who has steadily risen in the esteem of theater patrons throughout the country.

Other favorites of the screen world who will be seen in important roles are Margaret Livingston, Ralph Sipperly, Farrell MacDonald, Jane Winton and Arthur Housman. The director is F. W. Murnau, who accomplished a distinct triumph in his staging of "The Last Laugh."

The story of "Sunrise" concerns a husband and wife who are happy in their humble surroundings until a young woman from a neighboring city comes to the fishing village. Her cupid is aroused by the modest property that the man has accumulated and she deliberately sets about to ensnare him, planning to get him to sell his property, leave his wife and go back to the city with her. She has no regard for the wife nor for the man himself. She intends to drop him as soon as she has obtained the money. When she can think of no better way to get rid of the wife she asks the husband to take her out into the middle of the bay and have the boat seem accidentally to tip over so that the wife will be drowned.

last night at the meeting of the Boy Scout troop in the Second Christian church in charge of Scoutmaster H. M. Monigold.

CHARLIE MURRAY HIT AT STATE

FANNIE BRICE AT AMERICAN

Fannie Brice—the world's most unique comedienne—comes to the American theater Monday in "My Man," her first talking picture. Miss Brice has won for herself an enviable place through her work in the Ziegfeld "Follies" and on the road in vaudeville, and her present play combines the songs which have made her famous, including "My Man," about which the drama is built.

Mark Cantfield did the story which was adapted for the screen by Robert Lord. The cast includes Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Edna Murphy, Andre de Segurola, Richard Tucker, Billy Seay, Arthur Hoyt, Anna Brody and Clara Selwynne. Archie L. Mayo directed. The story of "My Man" is one of universal appeal, recounting the happenings in a New York tenement where lives Fannie, as the older sister, as well as an insolent younger sister and a small brother. Fannie comes unexpectedly to Fannie, the ugly duckling, and is snatched away by the sister—and upon the ruins Fannie builds her fame as a Broadway songstress. Don't fail to see and hear "Fannie the Inimitable!"

The story of "My Man" is one of universal appeal, recounting the happenings in a New York tenement where lives Fannie, as the older sister, as well as an insolent younger sister and a small brother. Fannie comes unexpectedly to Fannie, the ugly duckling, and is snatched away by the sister—and upon the ruins Fannie builds her fame as a Broadway songstress. Don't fail to see and hear "Fannie the Inimitable!"

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The "big move" in United States Steel stock, which has electrified the financial district for the past week, swung into action with the opening of the market today. A block of 4,000 shares of stock sold at 182, after which the stock was excitedly bid up to 184, covering a gain of nearly 20 points for the week.

Bulls in the industrial stock look at the new movement in steel common as the biggest kind of a boost for "their side" and a sure indication of a fine melon to be cut for the stockholders at the next directors' meeting. The bears point out that "steel" is the last of the speculative favorites to go up in a big bull campaign, and had this move as the "dying gasp" of the 1928-29 bull market. Between the two viewpoints there is plenty of middle ground.

Most of the steel, copper, lead and specialty stocks which participated in the vigorous advance of the week were ready to perform for the benefit of the bulls at the beginning of today's short session of the market. Vanadium Steel marched up boldly to 113 1/2 for a new gain of about two points; St. Joseph Lead was boosted into new high ground at 90 and International Nickel, new stock, sailed along to new high ground at 66 1/2.

Rock Island led the move in the high class rail shares, with an advance of three points to 138, and new life was injected into National Cash Register by a burst of buying which carried the price of the stock above 108. There was also another outburst in Anaconda, the wonder stock of the copper list, which boosted that stock to 122, for a gain of nearly three points.

PASSION

Gone were the vows to wife and child as he felt the embrace of his lover—his pulse raced like mad at the touch of her lips and the warm caress of her body—Forgotten now were the scenes of his humdrum life as he rushed to their tryst in the marsh. His home and his heart were things of the past for his soul belonged to the siren.
